

Name: Matthew Cooke

Class of works: I am writing in support of Class #3 (Unskippable DVD Advertising): Audiovisual works released on DVD that contain access control measures that interfere with the ability to control private performance, including the ability to skip promotional materials.

Summary:

Disc name: I actually do not recall the DVDs which had unskippable commercials, though I am pretty sure one of them was a Disney one (Beauty and the Beast comes to mind). However, I do know that my copy of Ocean's 11 does not play on the PC or XBOX.

I cannot remember the name of the last DVD I rented that forced me to watch advertisements that I could not fast-forward through, but it has happened twice. Another issue is that I bought Oceans Eleven (US version!), and it would not play on my PC or XBOX. I bought the XBOX partially so I wouldn't have to buy a separate DVD player, but it looks like it will not play all DVDs, even though I bought the DVD playback kit. My friend also could not play it on his PC.
